

PERSONAL MENTION

Left: KATE SMITH, named grand marshal of the 1975 Tournament of Roses parade, gets bowed on the cheek by RALPH S. HELPBINGER, tournament president. Smith is the third woman in the event's 27 years to be so honored. The other two were actresses MARY PICKFORD in 1952 and SHELLEY LONG in 1970.

SINATRA

Entertainer FRANK SINATRA and Consumers Publishing Co., which does business as the American Astrological Association in Canton, Ohio, for allegedly using his name without permission in a newspaper advertisement for astrological horoscopes. Sinatra, who asks "in excess of $10,000" from the firm, said his name and personal traits were listed in an ad that claimed he was destined to become a star because of "the stars."

BIRENBOY

Indian Yogi BIRENBOY said he wrote 843 spiritual poems in a 24-hour period and then remained awake several more hours to see his book come off the presses. Chitney heads the United Nations Meditation Group. The book, called "Transcendental Perfection," surpasses his previous record of 386 poems in one day.

RICH

Country and western singer-composer CHARLIE RICH and his wife have reconciled and she is dropping divorce proceedings begun Oct. 13, according to FRANK GLANKLER, attorney for MARGARET ANNE GREENE RICH. Glankler said Mrs. Rich asked him to withdraw her circuit court petition that accused Rich of cruelty.

Composer QUINCY JONES and PEGGY LIPTON of television's "Mod Squad" are expecting their second baby early next year.

HOUSTON CHRONICLE SECTION 3

HOUSTON, TEXAS, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1975

BIG CITY BEAT by Maxine

TUESDAY TATTLETALE: Former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski says his book about Watergate should be out in midsummer. He hasn't titled it yet. Leon said "I wanted everyone to get through with their books and articles on the subject before I came out with mine. Also, it will be a nonpartisan venture for me, since I don't feel I should make any money on a thing I did in the service of the government." Our "Don't Jack Donaghy" has been working with Leon on the writing. As you know, Barbra Streisand will star in still another remake of "A Star is Born," which starred Jeanette MacDonald and Judy Garland in the earlier version. There are concert series within the movie, and First Artists has decided to send Barbra on a miniconcert tour, film them live, then use clips in the movie. So, a First Artists rep will be in town this week to look over bills with an eye to Barbra's doing a concert here. They're also looking at Dallas, L.A. and Boston. "The Butler" is the latest dance craze with the Smurf Set, and the new "in" thing in N.Y. is to have flutist instructors at the big parties.

JAWORSKI

birthday cake at Gallagher's on the North Freeway. Lewis and Coker ex-Gene Lewis and wife Carol are off to join Walter Bailey's ranch at Kerrville for a week.

MAIN DRAG MERRY-GO-ROUND: "Tonight" show's Ed McMahon and Houston's Victoria Valentine, in for the Summit opening, are still talking about their wedding plans, though Ed hasn't gotten his divorce. If you remember, he gifted her with a big diamond several months ago. Incidentally, Victoria has trimmed off a lot of weight. Commemorative Little Truck Co.'s Donald Isaacson and wife Alison are home after a 2,000-mile cruise to the Bahamas aboard the Mardi Gras. Are you ready for this? When Paul Simon flew in Friday for his concert here, he went straight to rehearsal and sent his bags on to the Holiday Inn.

He stayed at the theater, did his concert, then went over and did some improvising at the Willie Nelson concert before returning to his hotel. Only trouble was, he didn't know there are a lot of Holiday Inns in Houston, and it took some doing of it to find his "home," which he finally did after impromptu phone calls to the various Holiday Inns. Southwest Models Claudia Calsinger, Margie Doyle and Annette Cope are back from New Orleans, where they worked for Nation's Battery at the National Business Men's Association.

SHOW TIME: The Ink Spots returned to the Hyatt Regency's Crystal Forest Monday night for a three-week stand, and though no original member is still with the group, the arrangements and the sound are the same. The Ink Spots sang an hour of their own hits, which started in 1953, and they make no attempt at the so-called "new" sound. Outlines will enjoy the nostalgia, and the young could discover that old sound. The group can bounce the memory with such songs as "Into Each Life Some Rain Must Fall," "Cry," "You Always Hurt the One You Love" and "This Is a Lovely Way To Spend an Evening," all big record hits for the Ink Spots. They also do a swinging, "Bill Bailey," which has Barbra Streisand doing the tap shoes for some fine moments of his own plus a good imitation of the late, great Bill Robinson. Jim Noble hits the familiar high notes of the group's arrangements and Gene Carroll does fine with the lower register. King Drake in guitar rounds out the group, and the hotel's Ricky Dee band backs the show. After the regular show, Noble returns solo to do the old "Deep Purple" and the group's one stab at what they feel is new music, "The Way We Were." For young or old, it's a lovely way to spend an evening.

Museum Party

It isn't often that you're truly — or ANYBODY — gets an invitation to a "coming out" party where the guest of honor is 120 million years old. So I prize the invitation from the Houston Museum of Natural Science to the party for Diplodocus baby.

D.H. (if I may venture such a familiarity) was 70 feet long and weighed about 12 tons when he reared this land. Nothing left of him but bones now, and the museum has glued them together (in the proper places) for a party in his honor on Nov. 23 at the museum.

"Black tie optional," the invitation says. But of course, black tie! Party-guests could do no less for a guest of distinction.

Town Names

So many of those Oklahoma towns have Indian names that are hard to pronounce, and even harder to spell. For instance, Karl Schreiner, a former Houstonian now living in Bartlesville, Okla., (that's one of the non-Indian towns) reports he has some Texas friends who visited him recently, after passing on the way in Checotah, Okla., a small town south of Tulsa.

The reason they passed was to get a bite to eat at a roadside fast-food franchise. While hunching they got into a discussion of the town's name. One of them called the waitress over.

"Young lady," he said, "can you tell us how to spell the name of this place?" She gave them a sort of hard stare, as if she thought they were trying to put her on, and then, very carefully and distinctly spelled: "D-A-I-S-Y Q-U-E-E-N."

Tennis Strategy

Tennis is a game for all ages. It works better for young ages but the more mature can cut a swath on the courts, too — by employing some of the guile that comes with experience. For that I have the Voice of Experience, in the person of Clay Bailey, TTA Western man, who is still playing at the age of — oh, never mind.

"I remember that when I made a trip to Vancouver, B.C., in 1962 I played and triumphed over a young Canadian who had neglected to practice for some months," he writes. "Since then it has been my boast to Houston friends that I am 'undefeated in Canada.' Lately I have discovered that the following may keep young opponents' scores down, or even result in an occasional victory on the courts:

"1. Remember, gentlemen, that you're pushed to and hope you won't show them down too much. They may incite an opponent's gentleness.

"2. When you're beginning to wheeze, stop and pretend a shoe lace is broken. If the pause doesn't help regain your breath enough, just happen to knock the ball over the backstop and read the youngster's recovery it.

"3. Select opponents who are newcomers to the sport. Even youth does not always win when the senior citizen has been on the courts since the '20s."

Willy guy, that Bailey. Beware of him, young players.

flex your feet in super-comfy slings

by Connie

19.00

You notice the difference between these and other shoes as soon as your foot nestles in. And wiggles. The shoe actually flexes with your foot. It's the thin, stitched to the bottom sole, pliant shoe structure, and padded inner lining, that give you a shoe you can walk in, stand in, wear for hours in luxurious comfort. Composed of man-made materials, and comes in two flattering styles: A, closed toe sling, or B, sandal sling. Red, green, navy, camel or black in sizes 5-10B; 6½-10AA.
